the phasing is insanely complex in all of my songs. i have some songs that look very casual like "emergency room," but as you go deeper they start to look even more fucking complex. and i even have a song like "death by sexy" that has like 50 different sounds going on. i thought this was interesting: the guardian : "muse offer up a lyrically morbid take on the eeriness of the natural world" and "it can be seen as a celebration of being together in all their natural glory." which is interesting because i never read it as celebration. to me it's about being alone and powerless in a dangerous world with no adults or social structure to help you. im not saying its depressing, but its undoubtedly creepy. and certainly, against the bleak landscape, his voice rings off in a way that's uniquely intimate and depressing. actually, i guess it doesnt make sense to even call it "depressing." i don't know what to call it. it's just like "stalker" and "creepy" and "object of desire" all in one. im just looking at pictures of you and it gives me a really sad feeling. the more i think about it, the more i think that its possible to make the case that a band such as mcr is so unrelentingly perfect due to the fact that all parties concerned have such a strong sense of what they like/need. thats true, but only because ive always had such an intense need to be a great actor, and because ive been able to give the strength to a performance like this that only comes with a steady dose of the career poison the black parade. i appreciate the sudden improvements, because that lets me know my adrenaline-fueled adjustments are making an actual difference, but i know the people (those that i know) involved with the making of this song, and i know what theyre really like, so i can tell when theyre just making stuff up on the spot.

while most reactions are reversible, some are not. a thermochemical reaction is a reversible thermochemical reaction. in a thermochemical reaction, the reactants are converted to products without increasing or decreasing in temperature. thermochemical reactions occur in nature, and sometimes the reactants are more stable than the products. in these cases, energy is released rather than absorbed. the band had a history of being vocal about its lifestyle, and the band was not shy about its enthusiasm for the things it believed in. for example, they became a couple in high school, and while gerard way has not confirmed this, he appears to be asexual. in the same way, the band made a point of promoting animal rights and veganism, and have been critical of the use of animals in entertainment and meat production. for example, the band has advocated for a video game company to replace violent, animal-based targets with avatars made of synthetic materials instead. even the band's name, my chemical romance, is a reference to the line in the pink floyd song "have a cigar", which they quote in a live performance: "have a nice day, bye". the band's fanbase and their releases are all named after flowers, fruits or animals, with "the black parade" named after a wild flower and "the cure for pain" named after a poisonous flower. more recently, a member of the band has released a song on youtube named after himself: "arms of mine". it's a great track, and a fitting way to close out their discography. read more on last.fm. user-contributed text is available under the creative commons by-sa license; additional terms may apply.
