Q: How to find the number of digits which satisfy the condition  $\sqrt{10} = 5^x$ ? How to find the number of digits which satisfy the condition  $\sqrt{10} = 5^x$ ? I have an expression:  $\sqrt{10} = 5^x$ . I know that  $\sqrt{10} = 5$  and  $x$  is between  $-2$  to  $+2$ . But that is not sufficient to answer the question. I have an idea: Is it possible that  $x$  is positive, negative or zero? How to write the equation, if it is possible that  $x$  can be negative or positive? A:  $5^x = \sqrt{10} \implies 10^{\frac{1}{2}x} = 10^x \implies x = 0, 1, \frac{1}{2}, \dots$  Therefore,  $x$  can only be  $0$  or  $1$ .

Ludecke's theory Ludecke's theory is an evolutionary biology hypothesis that there are two types of life, individuals that evolve in a deliberate manner and those that do not. Unlike the neo-Darwinian model, Ludecke's theory rejects the idea of a common ancestor and proposes that all life evolved separately and convergently. The two life forms are identified as "natural" and "inclined" creatures. Natural creatures evolve by their own internal organs; inclined creatures evolve by the environment. Evolutionary tendency is seen in all creatures, not just those that reproduce sexually.
