Published 7:00 pm, Friday, January 16, 2008 Start with four fresh raspberries. Put each in a separate serving dish and then put them into the microwave for a minute. Stir together, and they'll be thick and syrupy and ready for your topping. If you're feeling particularly ambitious, soak a slice of bread in water with a dash of cherry liqueur to flavor it. Then drizzle with some warmed honey and butter. Consider marinating a beef tenderloin in olive oil and rosemary, and then place it under the broiler for about a minute on each side. Add some cooked and finely chopped onions to your garden vegetable mix. Let the green onions mix with the other vegetables and then add a bit of crushed red pepper for that kick. Sprinkle with shredded mozzarella cheese before serving. In the movie "Friends," Ross tells Phoebe she should be a lesbian because she is "so delicate." But when it's Phoebe's turn to share, she lets Ross know she isn't that kind of girl. Here's how the Yankees' Shawn Chacon applied the science. He used the Asian plum (a.k.a. Japanese plum) - it's shiny green and has a milder flavor than the red plum - and a Chinese hot pepper, the biwa biri. He cooked them down in a little soy sauce for about an hour. Mmm, so hot. That's how we should think of food anyway, right? And when the urge to send a shot of hot sauce across the table to a friend or relative comes over you, this is the dish to make. Toss some watermelon and assorted melon balls with some sweet wine, a sweetener like molasses or brown sugar and some freshly cracked pepper. It's the perfect summer dessert. To make the celery relish, fold celery, green onions, ginger, celery seeds and salt in a bowl. Heat the oil in a small saucepan over medium heat until hot, add the celery mixture and toss until softened, about 2 minutes. Reduce the heat
