The 36th Chamber of Shaolin is a must-watch for any kung fu fan. It showcases the skills and philosophy of Shaolin monks, as well as the stunning choreography and cinematography of Lau Kar-leung. Whether you watch it on Netflix or on an online player, you will enjoy this masterpiece of martial arts cinema. The 36th Chamber of Shaolin is also known as The Master Killer, Shaolin Master Killer, and Shao Lin San Shi Liu Fang. It is part of a trilogy of movies that also includes Return to the 36th Chamber and Disciples of the 36th Chamber. The trilogy follows the adventures of San Te and his fellow Shaolin disciples as they fight against oppression and injustice. The movie is based on a highly fictionalized version of San Te, a legendary Shaolin martial arts disciple who trained under the monk Zhi Shan. In reality, San Te was a Ming dynasty general who rebelled against the Qing dynasty. He was also known as Chi Shan or Chi Thien Su. He is credited with creating the 18 Lohan Hands, a set of exercises that form the basis of Shaolin kung fu. The movie has been praised for its authentic portrayal of Shaolin culture and training methods. It shows San Te's progress through the 35 chambers of Shaolin, each one teaching him a different aspect of kung fu. The movie also features some of the most famous weapons and techniques of Shaolin, such as the three-section staff, the tiger claw, and the iron head.
