Ciara recently opened up in an interview with Essence about her experience with the law of attraction, and how important it is to be clear in your intentions about the things that you want out of life. She cited self-love and positive affirmation as the tools she used to manifest the life of her dreams. DC Universe has released a new Swamp Thing promo featuring Crystal Reed and the monstrous man of her dreams. Check out the video in the player below and catch the series premiere on the subscription service on May 31! Shilpa Shetty made her husband Raj Kundra's 44th birthday even more special by posting an absolutely adorable video on Instagram, on Tuesday. Shilpa handpicked a few of her favourite pictures of her entrepreneur husband and she made a super cute video out of it. Some of the pictures in the video will definitely make you go "aww." Shilpa's caption along with the video was cherry on the cake. In the note, the Dhadkan actress referred to Raj Kundra as the "man of her dreams" and the "king of her heart." She captioned it: "Happiest Birthday my Cookie, You are the king of my heart, man of my dreams and the love of my life. You are the best father, son, brother, and husband... And I'm one helluva lucky woman. May all your dreams come true because you really deserve it all. Wishing our super hero Raj Kundra tonnes of happiness, love, success, and great health above all." I'm Megan, a therapist, executive coach, writer, and podcast host. After years of perfectionism-fueled depression, anxiety, and eating disorders, I discovered how to like myself, take risks, and find success without beating myself up to get there. This game-changing shift allowed me to leave my "golden handcuffs" job at a college counseling center in Vancouver, and move to New York City to pursue my dreams. I write about how you, too, can develop a relationship to yourself where you motivate from love rather than fear, experience authentic happiness, and have the courage to do the sh*t that scares you. "Yes", says the beautiful singer quietly, "I am in love" - and blushes like a little schoolgirl. Then she rushes her hand through her hair and stares at the ground. She stands there as if she is caught. And that would be Kim Wilde (26), who already made Terence Trent d'Arby and Julian Lennon lose their minds? That would be the woman whose exciting body is the dream of millions of men?

Sure - with Kim Wilde everything has changed now. Because she has found the man of her dreams. It's Calvin Hayes (27), drummer of the British band "Johnny Hates Jazz". Like lightning the love hit them, when they met each other during a party with the Formel Eins broadcast. And still it wasn't love at first sight, but on second sight. Because the two have known one another for seven years already!

"I don't know how that could suddenly happen", tells Kim herself. "We always had a good understanding, but there was no sign of love."

The both met in London, when Kim was working with studio musicians on her first album. And one of them was this Calvin Hayes. After that they only saw one another by chance and even then for a brief moment - until the Formel Eins party.

There they talked and danced together all night, they weren't out of each other's sight for a moment. Then they had to keep still about their love. Kim went on tour with Michael Jackson and had no time for her lover for weeks.

But now both are in London, where they met, and Kim is the happiest girl in the world: "The time with Calvin is like heaven on earth..."
