One of the main aspects of Santoshi Maa's worship is the vrata or ritual fast that is observed by her devotees on Fridays. The vrata involves abstaining from sour and bitter foods and drinks, and eating only sweet and vegetarian dishes. The devotees also listen to or read the katha or story of Santoshi Maa, which narrates how she helped Satyavati overcome various obstacles in her life. The vrata is completed after 16 consecutive Fridays, followed by a udyapan or celebration in which eight boys are fed and given gifts. The vrata is believed to grant the wishes and desires of the devotees and bring them peace and happiness.

Santoshi Maa is also associated with the festival of Raksha Bandhan, which celebrates the bond between brothers and sisters. According to a legend, Santoshi Maa was born as the daughter of Ganesha, the elephant-headed god of wisdom and success, and his consorts Riddhi and Siddhi, who represent prosperity and accomplishment. She was named Santoshi by her brother Shubh-Labh, who are the sons of Ganesha and goddess Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth. On Raksha Bandhan, Santoshi Maa tied a sacred thread on the wrist of her brother Shubh-Labh, who in turn gave her a boon that whoever worships her on this day will be blessed with happiness and satisfaction.

Santoshi Maa is depicted as a young and beautiful woman with a golden complexion. She wears a red sari and ornaments of gold. She has four arms, in which she holds a sword, a golden pot of rice, a lotus flower, and a trident. She rides on a tiger or a cow or sits on a lotus throne. She is often shown with Ganesha and his family in her iconography. She is also sometimes accompanied by a white elephant, which symbolizes her connection to Ganesha.
